WOMAN'S WORLD.

MRS. FLORA HAYS IS CITY CLERK OF FRANKTON, IND.

Mother's Not Made by Rule—For a Young Baby—Women Who Try Business—Women Treasury Clerks—Dr. Martha Hughes Cannon—The Rage for Brass.

Mrs. Flora Hays, wife of the late John L. Hays, at his death city clerk of Frankton, Madison county, has been appointed to fill out his term of office and has filed bond and entered upon the discharge of the duties which fall to the clerk of a city of 3,500 population. She is probably the first woman to hold the office of town or city clerk in the central states, certainly the first in Indiana.

Upon her husband's death she was left dependent upon her ability to make a living, and she began by circulating petitions asking that she be appointed to fill out his term of office. The petitions were very freely signed, but when the matter of appointment came before the council the question of whether a woman could legally hold the office came up. It was argued by some that she could not and that if the city appointed her clerk all transactious in which the clerk was a party would be illegal and not binding.

Attorney General Kotcham was consulted, and after thoroughly examining the law he found that, while there was no statute covering the case, there was none which ruled against women holding offices of this nature. Upon this information the appointment was made, and she was placed in charge of the office. Those who have been watching her closely say that she has taken hold in a businesslike manner and shows evidence of proving to be one of the most efficient officers the corporation has ever had.

She writes good hand and is methodical. She has a general knowledge of town and city government and Indiana laws applying to that part of the work which falls to her.

Mrs. Hays is a charming little lady, scarcely over 25, and is a general favorite. She is accomplished and capable of gracing the drawing room as well as the city clerk's office. She is decidedly feminine in all of her tastes, but in her office work those little oddities which men call "feminine inconsistency" are entirely missing.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mothers Not Made by Rule.

It is almost impossible for the reader of modern newspapers not to fear that women are taking themselves altogether too seriously. Somewhere in almost every issue we are prayed by some fervent sister to "train ourselves for motherhood." Women have evidently been graduated from the training school for wifehood which was recommended a few years ago, or else the zealous promoters of conjugal happiness have at last despaired of making them so train. Why in the name of common sense should women train to be wives and mothers any more than men should train to be husbands and fathers? Surely it is not good for girls to feel, just in a general way and with no marriage in sight, that it is their special duty to have their lamps trimmed and burning, for the bridegroom is possibly just around the corner. Even the affianced girl would be robbed of much of the sweetness and poetry of life if she set herself as soon as the engagement ring was fairly fitted to her finger to take a course in infant nursing and kindergarten. One is reminded of the child's song in which a little girl asks a flower what she must do to be as sweet as a red, red rose. And the flower replies:

To be as sweet as a red, red rose.

A little girl like you

Just grows and grows and grows and grows.

And that's what she must do.

This would be more wholesome advice for girls to listen to than most of the offhand rambling now in vogue. Women need growth in all directions more than special training for motherhood. Sound bodily growth, not with a view to special functions, but that they may become excellent specimens of their race. Sound mental development; not the spoiling training of cooking school and kindergarten so much as the mental discipline which develops large sympathies, noble aspirations and a love of justice and truth. Most women of that type are able to turn the wheels of domestic machinery very smoothly indeed, but incidentally and without apparent effort.

The woman who specialized for the duties marriage usually entails would be dangerously sure of herself, inclined to be narrow and to be bound unchangeably to the rules which she had learned. This lack of pliability could not make for open mindedness. Humanity is greater even than wifehood or motherhood, and there is no fear that the successful human being will be a success if called upon to exercise those functions. The world is not so much in need of small minded women trained for child bearing and rearing as of large minded women fitted for patient service in any position to which life may call them. Many of the most successful mothers have had no training whatever for the state of motherhood, but were so enabled by a love of the higher things of life that to be a good mother was as natural as to breathe. Let girls go away with the thought that marriage and motherhood are purposes to be attained by "preparation, application and perseverance." Rather let them regard as their life purpose the attainment of larger attitude toward life, considering true marriage and motherhood as indeed life's choicest, rarest blessings, but blessings which, alas, must often be humbly, patiently renounced.—E. J. G. in Chicago Post.

For a Young Baby.

"For a young baby in cold weather two garments are needed between the undershirt and the dress," writes Frances Fisher Wood in an admirable little volume entitled "Infancy and Childhood." "These should be made, one of Jaeger white stockinet and the other of silk warped flannel. Neither one should be more than long enough to cover the feet. These materials are so beautiful that they will require no embroidery or trimming. Simple featherstitching will be sufficient to rebind both garments fit for a princess, and yet they will not cost as much and will be much more durable than the usual long, heavily embroidered flannel skirt and the longer, much betrimmed abomination called an overskirt. Silk warped flannel skirts and white china silk dresses have an extravagant sound and undoubtedly seem quite beyond the purse of many who yet really spend double the amount that would be needed to purchase these articles on garments that are at once impractical and unhealthful.

"The layette usually provided for a child is a barbarism. It is elaborate, yet not beautiful; expensive, but not useful; troublesome to make and keep in repair, yet not comfortable for the wearer. White china silk costs from 50 cents to $1 a yard. The dress, like the flannel undergarments, may be made entirely plain and should not be more than 40 inches long. The expense of such a dress is not more than half that of the ordinary hideous, overembroidered gown, which is beyond home skill to make or home talent to launder."

Women Who Try Business.

If a woman is ever to retain her present position in the business world, she must look to it that she makes her value felt. She has many advantages; she is punctual, painstaking, patient of monotony, amenable to discipline, ready and willing—indeed she craves as a rule rather from excess of zeal than from its defect—but she has two things to learn—first, that her health is her only capital and, secondly, that to rise above mediocrity it is necessary to think for yourself. For this last shortcoming her educators have much to answer for, but it cannot be too clearly understood that in the struggle for existence there is no room for the typist who has not at any rate the intelligence of the average computer nor for the secretary who forgets to post important letters, or incloses the letter to "Dear Mr. A." in the envelope addressed to "Mrs. B." It is lapses of this sort which at present so much of women's work, and to which apparently all but the very few are so singularly liable, largely, I fancy, because they have been studiously taught to leave out of account physiological facts.

What wonder, then, if they insist upon ignoring the most elementary laws of health and show a tendency to look upon eating and drinking as a criminal form of self indulgence? I don't say that a proper supply of blood to the brain would free the world of folly, but it would be at least worth trying whether more meat and the disappearance of all prejudices against sofas would not go a long way toward securing that desirable consummation. —Forthnightly Review.

Women Treasury Clerks.

United States Treasurer Roberts is having constructed in the corridor of the treasury building, just outside his office door, a large wall case, in which will be exhibited specimens of the remarkable skill of treasury clerks in repairing mutilated paper currency.

One of the several show places in the big building where Uncle Sam's financial operations are carried on is the basement floor room where the clerks, mostly women, are employed in piecing together greenbacks sent in for redemption, many of which are apparently beyond all hope of identification.

In the case will be arranged specimens of the most skillful and wonderful work of the women who receive the torn and tattered pieces of paper that may have been chewed by rats or passed through a coffee grinder and restore them to their original condition. It seems impossible that human hands can do such work, but it is hardly an exaggeration to say that bills so torn that they could be passed through a coarse sieve have been made whole again.

The women most expert in the work are Mrs. L. E. Brown, and Mrs. Lydia Roseberg, and the specimens of their skill that will be placed in Treasurer Roberts' exhibit case will indeed astonish the natives. One bill that was torn into 500 pieces was put into its original shape with not a scrap of the paper missing. Another that was burned almost to ashes and shrunk by the heat was restored, piece by piece, until it appeared a perfect half size reproduction of the original note.—Boston Transcript.

Dr. Martha Hughes Cannon.

Dr. Martha Hughes Cannon is famous as the first woman who was ever sent to a state senate to represent the citizens of a commonwealth. She has served two years in the legislature of Utah and has two years more yet before her. Dr. Cannon is a woman with a history, and a striking one. Prior to her marriage she studied medicine under physicians in Salt Lake City, then went to Ann Arbor, where she graduated in 1880, and afterward entered the University of Pennsylvania. Going from Ann Arbor admitted her at Philadelphia, where she got the degree of B. S. One hundred and twenty-five men started in the auxiliary course with Dr. Cannon, but only five of these and herself graduated. This was in 1882.

On her return to Salt Lake City Dr. Cannon became a resident physician in the Deseret hospital, which position she held for three years, having outside practice as well. At the close of that period she became the sixth wife of Mr. Angus M. Cannon. Dr. Cannon's husband is president of the high priest council, which is the ecclesiastical court of jurisdiction. President Cannon, besides being a church functionary, is a business man, having a large mining interest. In the political campaign for state senator President Cannon ran against his wife, Dr. Martha Hughes Cannon, and was defeated, as all the world knows. She represented the silver Democracy and received a handsome majority of votes.—Woman's Journal.

The Rage for Brass.

One has evidently got around again to the age of brass, for every second woman in society is collecting objects, small and large, made of this handsome metal, says Demorest's Family Magazine. Brass beds, andirons, fenders and kettles by no means satisfy the fashionable craving for articles made of this most ornamental of materials.

Long mirrors for the stately new houses are now set in brazen frames of most elaborate design, panels of brass line the walls of the dining rooms, vases large and small are made of the metal, and, as if extravagance must burst all bounds, one millionaire's wife has had her bathroom fitted with a huge tub that glitters like gold, at the head of which stands a tall, lovely female figure of brass, holding in her arms a water jar, from the mouth of which, on pressing a lever, issues a hot or cold shower bath.

But brass in house decoration, lavish though it is, invading the toilet table, writing desk and sideboard, where only gold or silver lately reigned, is a fad distinct from brass collecting as an art and interest. Many women who for years have been gathering up book plates, fine china or jewels have now got rid of their treasures in order to devote time and money to brasses.

Evening Toilets.

All stylish evening toilets have trousseau of various lengths appropriate for various textiles and occasions and in different styles for individual wearers. There are to be seen, for instance, the seven, eight and nine gored models, the circular forms, the skirts, accordion plaited, flounced, ruched, frilled, draped, panted and rounded at the hem or cut in square shape. As a rule, however, the more costly and beautiful the material the plainer is the skirt, a narrow rucho or a frill of handsome lace forming the only decoration, no matter how elaborately the bodice may be trimmed.

Would society be better off without capitalists? asks a writer. No, society would not be better off without capitalists. On the contrary, what it wants is more capitalists, plenty of them—not great capitalists who hold $100,000,000 apiece, but millions of small capitalists who have $100,000 apiece.

Turk an X ray on yourself occasionally to see whether there are any hidden lesions in your tempor, any leaky valves in your conscience and any imperfectly repaired fractures of the golden rule about.

The Electrical Engineer.

George B. Lander has written a prize essay, published in The Electrical Engineer, on how to become an electrical engineer. It is full of hope and encouragement for those bright, ambitious lads whose souls long to be in the midst of volts and ohms and dynamos and sparks.

Mr. Lander supposes the case of a youth of 18 who is without means to take him through school and who must, besides, earn his living as he goes along. He has, say, a common school education, nothing more. Let him first get employment with a firm that does wiring for electric lighting. In two years he will be an expert wireman and will be 20. Then he should hire himself out in the power house of some electric lighting company, where he may learn of dynamos, switchboards, arc lamps, meters, connections, etc. Meantime he must be reading and studying in his spare hours elementary works on electricity and must take a solid course in mathematics. He should stay with the electric company till he is 24, learning all he can about everything connected with his business. At the age of 24 it is essential that he take a course in a scientific training school, where he must study chemistry and mechanical engineering, among other branches a three years' course if possible, but two years at the least. After that a year or two of actual work in a machine shop are wanted, he still studying books on steam, mechanics and electricity.

By this time he will be about 28 years old. Let him then spend two years working in a large electrical manufacturing establishment. At the end of this time he is 30 and entitled to call himself an electrical engineer, and not till then.

British Cable Cars.

All large American cities and many smaller ones are familiar with the street car propelled by the cable system. A grip underneath the car is manipulated by the motorman, who grasps with it the moving cable in the slot beneath the street or releases it when he wishes to stop the car.

Mr. Hiram S. Maxim, the airship inventor, has discovered that Brixton, a suburb of London, has adopted the American cable street car—that is the American cable car with variations. He did not recognize the American cable system at first, since "each car was provided with a small and extremely ugly locomotive." He could not understand what the locomotive was for and questioned the gripman, who explained:

"Well, underground here is a wire rope. This 'ere thing goes down through this 'ere slot and clamps the rope, and the rope pulls the locomotive, and the locomotive pulls the car."

"What is the object of the locomotive?"

"Why, to draw the car, of course."

"But why not put the clamp on the car and dispense with the locomotive altogether?"

After he had thought the matter over a short time I asked again:

"What is the use of the locomotive?"

His reply was:

"I'll be hanged if I know."

Now, if this system had been introduced into a country like Germany, France or Spain, the natives would have had sufficient respect and confidence in American engineers and systems to have put it up in the exact manner that it was imported, but as the English engineers were used to a locomotive and wished to make some change in the American model they added the "locomotive," which certainly looks very awkward and is without question superfluous.

General John W. Foster, the American whom China recognizes as her disinterested friend, long ago advised the officials there to reconstruct the army and navy. He likewise modestly suggested that nobody could take charge of the reconstruction more scientifically than a number of officers from the American army and navy. But China did not take this kind advice, and now she lies helpless. Perhaps, however, it is as well for the fame of our army and navy that she did not adopt General Foster's suggestion. No foreign officers could do anything with a people in whom the national spirit is as feeble and indifferent as in the Chinese. The contrast with Japanese patriotism shows that China, the oldest nation, is at length also a dying nation.

Sheep Ticks.

Every one who has sheep knows the tick, the worst pest of this animal, that does serious harm to the young lambs without suspicion of the cause to the shepherd. This reddish brown creature is a wingless fly and a very greedy blood-sucker. A dozen of them on a lamb will quickly suck the little one dry. It is to be looked after at the time of shearing, when these insects go for shelter to the lambs. It is found mostly where the animal cannot reach it—on its head, buried in the skin, sucking the blood.

Its skin is tough, and it is not easily crushed with less than a blow of a hammer. In small flocks it is not much of a job to go through, with a pair of small scissors to cut the ticks in two, but where the flock is over a score it will be necessary to dip the lambs. Exchange,

One Way to Travel.

Probably the champion fakir of the day, an honest and worthy fakir, too, is M. E. A. Lasley, the man who with his family has crossed the American continent in a wagon, or "house on wheels," as he prefers to call it. He supported his family as he went along, visiting the leading places of interest in a territory extending from San Francisco and Texas on the south to Chicago and Buffalo on the north.

The journey began March 22, 1894, at Port Angeles, on the strait of Juan de Fuca, 100 miles northwest of Seattle. It reached its chief stopping place the 1st of January, 1895, in New York city. Not that it ended there. Lasley must be the reincarnation of the Wandering Jew, for he says he is going still on, and that the house on wheels and the tow headed children and the dog will turn up at the Paris exposition in 1900. The only concession he will make to the conventionalities will be involved in the necessity of crossing the Atlantic in a ship instead of a wagon. Undoubtedly this original American family will make a holy show rolling along over the smooth highways of France in their unique homemade vehicle.

The house on wheels was built by the versatile Lasley himself. It is of cedar clapboards and is 6 feet high and 12 feet long. It has a stove in one corner and can be divided into two compartments. The clapboard walls are lined with cloth and heavy paper. Two babies have been born to the couple in their house on wheels.

The plan of campaign was this: Lasley is a jack of all trades, and wherever he is can "turn his hand" to almost anything. Mind reading appears to be the lowest depths he reached. When he stopped in a neighborhood, the queer outfit always attracted a crowd. Then Lasley's eloquence prevailed. He succeeded generally in getting work of some sort, either at farming or at some mechanical tinkering. Besides that he always had on sale his little book, the history of his travels and photographs of the outlandish rig and the whole family. In selling these he sometimes took in money at the rate of "a dollar a minute." Not the least attraction was the tow headed children peeping like birds out of the little window in the wagon and displaying a radiance of complexion and health absolutely dazzling. Many a millionaire would give untold sums to have his pampered children look like the Lasley young ones. In California the family lived awhile on grapes and green walnuts—"very good food," writes Lasley, "but after two weeks it clides." Naturally it would "clide."

The house on wheels traveled 6,666 miles on its journey from Port Angeles, Wash., to New York city. Lasley says he never shies his horses in summer, and they never get tender footed. It is necessary to be truthful, however, and say that two pairs of horses have succumbed to the arduous labors of hauling the Lasleys by crisscross routes over this continent and have lain down and died. Was it because they had no shoes in summer?

Some of the fakir's observations of travel are gems in their way. He says in a little descriptive pamphlet that during the nearly four years they have been on their journey the Lasleys have been invited to attend church only six times. Of California he writes, "Ranchmen are close fisted, they believing a poor man a curse to the earth—better be dead." Of Texas, "Texas people are the most religious we ever met, also the poorest." Do the two facts belong together. Again, "It causes us to smile to see the pomposity of some city officials." Many another has had occasion to remark the same.

Lasley is a spare man with a fresh complexion and a shrewd, bright eye. It is said the people of New York city thought he really might have put on a clean shirt when he reached their town and not worn the same one in which he started from Seattle. Still, New Yorkers are apt to be oversensitive in these little matters.

Princeton university has sent a second expedition to Patagonia. It is to be hoped some of Princeton's football team went along to learn from the big, splendid Patagonian savages just what a human being is capable of in the way of physical development. The Patagonians are of great stature. They go naked winter and summer, although their climate is colder than that to which Princeton students are accustomed. When it is very cold, they simply wrap a sealskin blanket around them for awhile if they feel chilly. As a result of this immunity from the burden of clothes they are as straight as an arrow and have a form and muscles like a Greek god.

ROSSER & McCARTHY,
Proprietors.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1898.

For Kentucky.—Fair, followed by increasing cloudiness; variable winds.

If Maysville can afford to spend $10,000 a year to keep her present streets in repair, she can much better afford to spend ten times that sum to build streets that will not cost so much to keep up, and that will be a credit to the city.

The right way to get at the street improvement question is for those in favor of the movement get up a petition to the City Council asking that the matter be submitted to a vote of the people. The subject has been talked about long enough. Let's quit talking and get down to business.

Boss HANNA seems to rest under the impression that if he had been defeated this week the Republican party would have expired, forthwith. He also seems to think God's continued reign over this universe depended upon his election to the U. S. Senate. Mark is "the whole thing," in his mind. It is unfortunate for the country that such a man should be chosen to represent a great State in the National Legislature.

Heavy Sale of C. and O. Bonds.

NEW YORK, January 12.—It was reported in Wall street to-day that a banking house here had purchased from the treasury of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company $2,281,000 first mortgage bonds, which had originally been reserved to retire the purchase money sixes maturing next July. Application to list these bonds was made to-day. The price paid is said to have been 114½, making a considerable saving in interest.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING.

Nearly Half Our Imports Are Agricultural Products—A Question For Farmers to Study.

[Cincinnati Times-Star.]

A lesson is to be learned from a study of tariff statistics which show that from 48 to 55 per cent. of the total imports are for agricultural products. The idea of an agricultural country, such as ours is, importing agricultural products is paradoxical. Last year the agricultural imports amounted to nearly four hundred millions. With the exception of tea, coffee, spices and a few other products from tropical countries, the list includes nothing but what this country can grow. The farmers of the country are so absorbed in the chase of the elusive dollar that they inadvertently augment a bad condition. More diversified farming would bring about a condition that would be of direct benefit to the farmer and contribute to the solution of the hard times problem.

The farmer could raise that which he now buys and compels his urban patron to buy from a foreign country. It has been asserted that a general diversity of crops in the agricultural districts would keep in circulation at home millions of dollars that the foreigner now receives. The Souther planter has been taught the lesson and next summer will see less cotton and more "hog and hominy" raised on Southern plantations.

Byar-Sidwell.

Mr. Herbert Byar, of Minerva, and Miss Carrie Sidwell, of Flemingsburg, were married yesterday at 12:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, Rev. W. S. Willis officiating. The wedding was a quiet affair, only the immediate families being present.

The bride is a daughter of the late J. M. Sidwell, and a lovely and estimable young lady. She is a niece of Mrs. H. G. Wells, of this city. The groom is a son of Squire Joseph Byar.

MR. EDWARD B. LINNEY, a prominent Danville Republican, was named yesterday for postmaster of the Boyle County capital.

MR. FRANK HAWES and family, who moved here from Augusta, occupy a portion of Mrs. Triplett's residence on East Second street.

MR. W. C. BEARD, formerly connected with the Standard Oil Company in this city, is reported dangerously ill at his home at Catlettsburg.

A COMMITTEE of the Virginia Legislature has recommended that the whipping post be re-established in the Old Dominion. Some think the Kentucky Legislature would not go amiss in following this example.

THE CITY ATTORNEY of Louisville holds that a slot machine is a gambling device, and that it is a felony for any person to set one up and operate it. It is said one or two of the machines are being operated in this city.

LEXINGTON Herald: "Mr. George Headley has refused 16 cents for a crop of tobacco grown on his farm, situated on the Russell Cave pike. The tobacco is of unusual quality and Mr. Headley expects to realize a handsome price for it."

LEXINGTON Herald: "Col. Albert E. Boone, 'the railway pathfinder,' is having some trouble in Indiana with the proposed and much discussed Black Diamond Road. The people do not like the plans of the company and unless a change is made it is very doubtful if the road will ever materialize."

CAPTAIN T. J. NOLIN has accepted a position as steward on the new Harry Brown, the largest and finest towboat on western waters. She has just been completed, and will leave Pittsburgh next week with a big tow of coal for New Orleans. Captain Nolin has been on the river for years and has made a host of friends up and down the Ohio who will be glad to learn of his good fortune.

Beware of That Hacking Cough...TAKE CHENOWETH'S COUCH SYRUP IN TIME.

The Royal is the highest grade baking powder known. Actual tests show it goes one-third further than any other brand.

"A HOT TIME"

The Republicans Are Having Over the Post-office Plum—Committee Refers It Back to Judge Pugh.

To say the Republicans are having a hot time in their fight over the postoffice "plum" at this place is putting it very mildly.

And to say that Congressman Pugh is being roasted for the course he is pursuing is also expressing it very mildly. His lack of "backbone," in trying to shirk the responsibility of recommending some one for the appointment, has disgusted even many leading Republicans who have ardently supported him in the past.

Judge Pugh some days ago referred the matter to the County Executive Committee and the late Republican officials of the county. Yesterday afternoon was the time set for the committee and ex-officials to meet and settle the fight.

Instead of settling the contest, however, the committee and ex-officials, by a vote of sixteen to thirteen, referred the whole matter back to Judge Pugh.

There were six applicants before the committee, Mr. Clarence Mathews, Chairman of the County Committee; Editor Davis of the Public Ledger, Mr. Charles Phister, Mr. David Wood, Mr. Will Heiser and Captain John E. Wells. Captain Wells withdrew his name before any action was taken. The name of ex-Jailer John Johnson was not before the committee.

Mr. James Huff, of Cynthiana, District Chairman, was present, and took quite an active part in the meeting. His interference in the matter was resented quite warmly by some of the applicants.

Whether Judge Pugh will now settle the contest himself or devise some new scheme for settling the matter remains to be seen. If he knew how the people regard the course he has pursued, he would make the recommendation himself, and that at once.

EXTRA California canned peaches 15c. per can, worth 25c., at Langdon's.

MISS LUCY WARDLE SMITH, who has been quite ill a few months, is improving.

THE will of the late Joseph Wallingford with codicils was admitted to probate Thursday. Messrs. B. A. Wallingford and L. W. Robertson qualified as executors, without surety, as provided in the will. It was written December 30th, 1892, and there are seven codicils to it.

THERE will be an oyster supper to-morrow night given by the Ladies Aid Society of Mitchell Chapel at the home of Mrs. Maggie Yazell near Forest avenue. The proceeds of the supper are not to defray any church expenses, but for the purpose of purchasing a communion set for the church.

MR. JOSEPH BUSHER, of Cincinnati, an experienced grocer, is here to assist in the management of Langdon's grocery on Sutton street. The people will find him a very clever and courteous gentleman. He will remain indefinitely. Mr. William Kroger, also of Cincinnati, the hustling Superintendent of Langdon's establishments, is also spending a few days with the Maysville house.

SOME newspapers sometimes get dates wrong. Rev. Dr. John Hall has lived in New York less than thirty-one years instead of forty-eight years, as Monday's papers had it. The first time he was ever in this country was at the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Cincinnati in 1867, as a delegate from the city of Belfast where he then lived. He preached then in that city where the writer heard him and was called there soon after.

MR. JOSEPH NELSON was visiting friends in the county this week. The interest in his claim in the French spoliation case has again assumed a new aspect from some recent action theron in Congress.

MILO ALLENWORTH, a tough character from Ironton, was captured at Portsmouth this week on charge of stealing 368 pounds of brass from the C. and O. shops at Russell. The brass was recovered.

DR. JAMES SHACKLEFORD, Dr. H. K. Adamson and Dr. P. G. Smoot, of this city, Dr. W. H. Hord, Orangeburg, Dr. M. H. Davis, Mayslick, have been commissioned by the State Board of Health as members of the County Board of Health for this year.

EDWARD SHANNON, aged twenty-eight, unmarried, was run over and fatally injured in the yards of the L. and N. Railroad at Paris Wednesday night. A special train was gotten in readiness to take him to Lexington, but he died before a start could be made. Shannon was yardmaster of the L. and N. at Paris.

COUGHS and colds in themselves are not serious maladies. The most trivial cough or cold, if neglected, may lead to asthma, bronchitis, or consumption. The right time to treat a cough or cold is right away. Delay means danger. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey is a quick cure, a safe cure. Druggists sell it. For sale at Chenoweth's drug store.

SPeAKING of the finding of a portion of a man's body on the river shore below Aberdeen, heretofore mentioned in the BULLETIN, a correspondent of the Ripley Bee says: "It is thought by many who visited the spot that the body had been foully dealt with and then cut in two parts in order to accommodate a small shallow grave in the sand, the action of the water unearthing it and carried away the other part, leaving the remaining portion partly imbedded in the sand. It is evident that the man met his death about three months ago, as the condition of the body indicated such. During the summer and fall shanty-boats carrying ill-repute characters, launch there and hold forth for two or three days and then drop silently down the river in the dead of night, taking their secrets with them."

We'll Break the Rule.

JANUARY, as a rule, is a dull month for Clothing people. We believe much of the dullness is the fault of the merchants. They labor under the impression that nearly everyone has laid in their winter supplies and fear to expend money for printers' ink. We will break the rule and see what virtue there is in printers' ink and the offer of good Clothing at about 50 cents on the dollar. Now the first thing you want to do is to read this ad. carefully; the next is to come and see the goods advertised. What will follow will be a rule-breaker.

ON Thursday morning, January 13th, and until the end of the month, all our fine Beaver Overcoats—garments that sold for $10, $12 and $15, will go at $8.75.

Our finest Beaver, Kersey and Cover Overcoats that sold at $18, $20 and $25 will go at $15.

Our Cheviot and Cassimere Suits that sold at $10, $12 and $15 will go at $8.75.

Our finest Cheviots, Worsted, and Cassimere Suits that sold at $15, $18 and $20 will go at $12.

We need not comment on qualities. Everybody knows what class of Clothing we sell.

$4.90. $4.90. $4.90.

This represents the selling price of 260 all wool Cassimere and Cheviot Suits that we recently closed out from C. Meyers & Bro., Philadelphia. Not a Suit in the lot that isn't worth $9. They come in four styles and all sizes. We believe them the greatest bargains we were ever able to offer you. Thursday morning the entire line will be in our show window. Look for the $4.90 Suit. It's a hummer.

For extra Bargains in fine SHOES, come to us. We want to close out our heavy Shoes to make room for our Spring stock.

TURNPIKE RAIDERS.

They Have Commenced Their Lawless Work in Bracken County.

AUGUSTA, Ky., January 12.—In spite of the efforts to settle the turnpike question in Bracken County amicably, there is every indication of approaching trouble.

The county voted for free pikes, but the negotiations for the purchase of the properties have never been completed satisfactorily, and there is a feeling of discontent over this delay.

Two gates have been demolished and the gatekeepers warned to quit their places and collect no more toll. Notwithstanding this fact one gatekeeper so warned has pluckily put up a rope across the road, steadily refusing to be driven out.

These warnings are becoming more frequent and there are fears of a general series of raids as have been perpetrated in other counties.

The raider element cannot be ferreted out, and they are keeping their movements so well covered as to have everybody baffled. Some persons think the leaders are writing notes from Mason County and starting the discontent.

SENATOR LINDSAY.

Union County's Representative Wants Him to Resign, But His Resolution Not Taken Seriously—Legislative Doings.

FRANKFORT, Ky., January 13.—On the meeting of the House at 11 o'clock Representative Charlton sent up a resolution providing for a meeting of the joint Assembly, Tuesday, January 25, at noon to elect a State Librarian.

The following bills and resolutions were then introduced:

A resolution requesting Kentucky Congressmen and Senators to urge the bill prohibiting the appropriation of money to individuals or associations except in case of absolute suffering to supply food.

Representative Saunders, of Union, introduced a resolution charging Senator Lindsay of voting against the Democratic party, and calling on him for his resignation.

Representative Desha, of Harrison, moved to refer the resolution to a Committee of Petitions and Grievances, seconded by Tracy, of Covington.

Representative Charlton humorously presented an amendment to also call for Debow's resignation.

Mr. Saunders insisted on a vote on his resolution, but Desha's motion carried.

Representative Humphrey's resolution inviting William Jennings Bryan to address the Assembly at a time to be fixed by him and ordering the Speaker to appoint committee to extend an invitation, was adopted. Representatives Humphreys, Depp and Myers were appointed.

A joint resolution calling for an investigation of State prisons was introduced.

A resolution asking Congress to pass a revenue law to prevent the sale of liquor in local option districts was also presented.

Representative Weatherford's bill reducing salaries was ordered to its second reading.

Senator Elmore introduced a bill to abolish the Register of the Land Office and consolidate it with the office of Secretary of State.

The Committee on Charitable Institutions reported the following nominations:

John L. Long, to be Superintendent of Feeble-minded Institute, Porter Prather to be First Assistant Physician at the Eastern Asylum, vice Long, Cassins D. Mansfield to be Second Assistant Physician and Louise Bergman third.

Senator Wilson introduced an act making it a felony to occupy an untenant house without permission. Also an act giving farm laborers a lien on crops superior to all other liens.

DARBY,

Of Oil Gas Burner Fame, Bound Over To Grand Jury For Alleged Frauds.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Elijah Darby, the promoter of the Darby Oil Gas Burner Company, was yesterday bound over to the grand jury by Squire Davies in the sum of $2,000. Attorney William Littleford signed the bond. Darby was charged with obtaining money by false pretenses in that he secured $5,000 in cash and a note for a similar amount. The trial occupied ten days, drawn out through a period of almost two months. In all there were twenty-six witnesses heard. Eight of these were for the defense. The latter were put on the stand yesterday afternoon. The complaint against Darby was that the burners sold by him were not what they were represented to be. Darby alleged that the burners would consume only about one gallon of coal oil in ten hours, and that the mechanism was perfect. It proved that much more oil was consumed and that the mechanism would get out of order on the least provocation. The eighteen witnesses who testified against the defendant were stockholders in the concern. It was brought to light that Darby had been given about $105,000 for his patent right, and that the company with him at the head had been formed to push the invention. It was brought out that not one of the Directors elected had paid 1 cent on the capital stock, but that territorial rights had been sold and the money thus raised was to go as payment on the capital stock. Nearly all of the witnesses testified that the amount of oil consumed by the burners was at least three times as much as claimed, and that the burners would invariably get out of order. Before taking the action he did Squire Davies considered the matter fully and decided that there was nothing to do but bind Darby over to the grand jury. The witnesses on the stand yesterday were mainly patent attorneys who were called to pass on certain rights regarding the sale of the patent and other technical matters pertaining to the law in such cases.

THE TWO most critical times in a woman's life are the times which make the girl a woman, and the woman a mother. At these times, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of incalculable value. It strengthens and invigorates the organs distinctly feminine, promotes regularly the functions, relieves irritation and inflammation, checks natural, exhausting drains, and puts the whole delicate organism into perfect condition. Almost all the ills of womankind are traceable to some form of what is known as "female complaints." There are not three cases in a hundred of woman's peculiar disease that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will not cure.

THE drying of clothes in frosty weather is sometimes in the case of delicate fabrics, attended with tearing because of the quick stiffening in the very cold air. A simple precaution which will prevent any such trouble is to dissolve three or four handfuls of coarse salt in the last rinsing water, thus making it, in fact, a weak brine. Articles so rinsed will not suffer from or stiffen with the cold.

The Coming Woman

who goes to the club while her husband tends the baby, as well as the good old-fashioned woman who looks after her home, will both at times get run down in health. They will be troubled with loss of appetite, headaches, sleeplessness, fainting or dizzy spells. The most wonderful remedy for these women is Electric Bitters. Thousands of sufferers from lame back and weak kidneys rise up and call it blessed. It is the medicine for women. Female complaints and nervous troubles of all kinds are soon relieved by the use of Electric Bitters. Delicate women should keep this remedy on hand to build up the system. Only 50¢ per bottle.
